

GCR recommends our EU & Competition team

January 18, 2017

Global Competition Review (GCR) publishes independent, renowned surveys including the GCR 100 and Rating Enforcement. GCR is an essential daily resource for over 10,000 competition professionals worldwide and is recognised as the world's leading competition law service. They have done research on competition law practices in the Netherlands and published a review on the Netherlands competition bar. They have stated the following about our practice:

"Frederieke Leeflang co-heads the antitrust team at Boekel alongside Marc Kuijper, who became a partner in April 2016. Leeflang is one of the top competition lawyers in the Netherlands for healthcare matters, but her practice covers the full remit of competition law. The firm is active in follow-on damages litigation and acts for several Deutsche Bahn entities in claims against 11 companies that participated in the pre-stressed steel cartel. It also represents Vestel Group in its damages claim against members of the cathode ray tube cartel, and defends Japan Airlines and ENI in separate third-party damages proceedings arising out of the respective air cargo and paraffin wax decisions. The firm advised Klaas Puul, the second-largest producer and wholesaler of seafood in northwest Europe, on its immunity application to the European Commission and other national competition authorities to avoid liability for anticompetitive behaviour between wholesalers. It also provides ongoing merger control advice to Turkish multinational Zorlu Holding; and compliance advice to Superunie, a wholesale purchasing cooperative of 14 supermarket companies."
