- Bilateral and syndicated lending
- Consumer finance
- Debt capital markets
- Financial institutions regulation
- Fund finance
- Private placements
- Project finance
- Real estate finance
- Trade finance
- Trust Offices
- Technology driven financial products and services (FinTech)

Acting for both the finance providers and users, we help to provide financing to virtually every industry, with deep sector-specific experience in real estate, (renewable) energy, infrastructure and transportation.

Since Dentons represents both sides, you benefit from a counsel that understands the needs and wants of each party. Whether yours is a domestic bank, a government development bank, or any other bank in any location, our team understands you.

Being part of Dentons' integrated global Banking & Finance practice, we offer unrivalled global coverage, with over 900 Banking & Finance lawyers world-wide across 57 markets. Via our Nextlaw Global Referral Network we can even provide coverage in over 173 countries.

Our integrated global team of Banking and Finance lawyers and professionals offers an expansive breadth of insight, helping our clients to structure and document transactions.

Additionally, the Amsterdam team has a strong reputation in the field of regulatory legislation. We advise Dutch market players and financial regulators on all aspects of financial regulation, including licensing issues, prudential and market conduct requirements, security offerings and questions about market abuse.

The regulatory team has a particular focus on the regulatory aspects of technology driven products and services, such as innovative payment and funding solutions, cryptocurrencies and initial coin offerings (ICO's), the advising on fund structures (AIFMD) and the implementation of and ongoing regulatory compliance and governance requirements under e.g. PSD(2). Together with our corporate, IT, privacy and tax law specialists we can offer integral solutions to our clients. As such, we are a one stop shop for startup's, payment services providers, banks and other parties engaged in FinTech and innovative payment and funding solutions, both domestically and globally, together with the global team.
