

Overview

Cartel damages and claims

The European Commission and the Dutch Authority for Consumers and Markets regularly fine companies for entering into cartel agreements. Civil proceedings related to the potentially adverse consequences of cartel activities are regularly initiated.

In these proceedings, deep knowledge of competition law, civil tort law, and procedural law is essential. Dentons Boekel's highly experienced Competition and Antitrust Litigation team is made up of legal professionals from all these fields. It has been involved in almost all cartel litigation actions in the Netherlands in the past ten years, representing clients suspected or convicted of cartel conduct, as well as clients which have sustained damages as a result of cartel practices. Having regularly represented both claimants and defendants, we offer insight into both sides of a case. Our lawyers employ a practical approach, aimed at settling the dispute in an expeditious manner.
